Once upon a time, along the creek and among the trees, in the foothills of Colorado, a romantic tree house was built. Created with love by the owners, Tom and Gail, it is now a magical one-of-a-kind getaway at their award-winning inn. Welcome to the Highland Haven Creekside Inn's most ambitious, luxurious and romantic new accommodation - The Tree House.

Opening Date: May 1, 2011

Architectural and Green Features:

- Built to meet Energy Star's highest rating
- Tree House design second-place winner in the 2010 SIP (Structured Insulated Panels) School Design Symposium's national design competition
- 850 total square footage
- Tree House anchored by 21-foot-high, 36-inch-diameter cedar log structures
- Total height of Tree House, from ground-level parking to third-level spa cupola: 35 feet
- Emerald green, arch-topped, knotty alder front door with rounded window
- Restored antique stained-glass window reclaimed from an old Denver mansion, back lit to shine in the evenings, too
- 200-square-foot spa cupola with 15-foot peak, featuring multi-colored stained-stick ceiling paneling, an aspen mobile made by a Colorado artist that "dances" in ceiling pitch, and jaw-dropping views into towering pine trees

Magic Touches Inside:

- Exclusive tree house art collection lining staircases
- Main room featuring a sumptuous, canopied king bed flanked with Aspen logs
- Showpiece chandelier enhanced with antique and handmade stones, beads and Swarovski crystals
- Wet bar with Teak root sink, LED-lit bar shelves and custom iron and tile fireplace
- Flat-screen TV, Blue Ray DVD player, wireless Internet and twin iPod docking stations
- Adjacent bathroom with a sink carved from ancient petrified wood and pebble path leading to double steam shower
- Second-story private spa with infinity-edged Jacuzzi, wrapped in 65 yards of caramel sheers and featuring the latest "Champagne" micro-bubble technology
